A mass meeting in the interest of the drive for $150,000 for the benefit of the proposed Hebrew home for the aged and hospital will be held at the Eighth Street Temple, Eighth street between H and I streets northwest, at 8 o'clock tonight.

At the meeting to be held tonight the speakers will be as follows: Simon Wolf, Rabbi George Silverman, Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, and Mrs. J. W. Stohman. The opening prayer will be delivered by Rabbi J. T. Loeb, and vocal selections will be rendered by Rev. Shefferman and family. M. D. Rosenberg will preside.

Decorative Scheme in Charge of Kindergarten Draws Plaudits.

Approximately 500 children, accompanied by their parents, attended the annual Halloween party at Plaza Playground, Second street and Massachusetts avenue northeast, yesterday.

The decorative arrangement, in charge of the Toddler kindergarten, was elaborate in every particular. Everywhere within the spacious area of the play center, varicolored streamers were suspended. Japanese lanterns, the season's blooms and other plants and greens helped carry out the decorative scheme.

Following the assemblage of costumed boys and girls at 3 o'clock, a march of the participants for prizes was held.

All sorts of costumes were in evidence, from the handsome to the grotesque. Practically every nation was represented by some clever interpretation in the form of garb. Uncle Sam, with a wee tot, drew much applause.

The winners for the boys prizes were: Roy and Burton Wine, for their large and small boy divisions. For the girls, the winners were: Ruth Domdera, as gypsies, and Ruth Domdera, as gypsies. The judges were Miss Katherine Swanson and Miss Ruby Neal.

Among the interested attendants was Mrs. Susan Root Rhodes, director of district playgrounds. Miss Katherine Swanson and Miss Ruby Neal supervised the arrangements.
